ABOUT ACUPUNCTURE & HERBS

Infertility may be caused by a number of biological and external factors, including organ imbalance, weak constitution, and dietary habits. Acupuncture and herbal medicine are administered together in order to increase fertility. Timing and consistency of treatment (for both male and female infertility) are important to achieve pregnancy. For fertility treatments, a consultation with both partners present is required. The goal of Oriental Medicine in the treatment of infertility is not only to achieve pregnancy but a healthy baby delivered at full term. In order to achieve this, the body must be treated as a whole without the toxic side effects of invasive procedures (such as in vitro fertilization).
